ARTICLE CONTRIBUTORS

Christian Turner

The Segregation of Markets

Christian Turner is an Associate Professor at the University of Georgia School of Law. He served previously as a visiting assistant professor at Fordham Law School, an associate at the Wiggin and Dana law firm in New Haven, Connecticut, and a law clerk for Judge Guido Calabresi of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. His prior work concerns legal theory, institutions, and the public/private distinction. He is a graduate of Stanford Law School.

Michael D. Cicchini

Constraining Strickland

Michael D. Cicchini is a criminal defense lawyer in Kenosha, Wisconsin. He has tried thirty-four cases to juries resulting in sixteen full acquittals and several additional trial wins. He is also the author or coauthor of four books and twenty-eight law review articles. The Winnipeg Free Press called his recent book, Convicting Avery (Prometheus) “thoughtful and well-reasoned . . . eye-opening and frightening,” and Vocal Media wrote that “in a crowded and competitive field . . . it’s definitely among the best true crime books of 2017.” Cicchini’s law review articles, which include several original empirical studies, have been cited in court decisions, annotated statutes, legal treatises, attorneys’ motions and briefs, legal reform initiatives, books, newspaper articles, social science journal articles, and other law review articles. For more information, visit www.CicchiniLaw.com.

Robert Bird

From Suspicion to Sustainability in Global Supply Chains

Robert Bird is a Professor of Business Law and the Eversource Energy Chair in Business Ethics at the University of Connecticut. A graduate of Boston University School of Law and School of Management, Robert taught at Seton Hall University before joining the University of Connecticut in 2004. Robert’s scholarship focuses on compliance, legal strategy, ethics, and employment law. Robert is also the co-director of the Certificate in Corporate and Regulatory Compliance, a joint graduate compliance program between the law school and business school. Robert has authored over sixty publications, including works in the Journal of Law and Economics, American Business Law Journal, the Harvard Journal of Law and Public Policy, and the MIT Sloan Management Review. Robert is the recipient of the Academy of Legal Studies in Business (ALSB) best international paper award, distinguished proceedings award, the Holmes-Cardozo best overall conference paper award, and various other best paper awards. Robert was Editor-in-Chief of the American Business Law Journal in 2012–2013, and he served as its Administrative Editor, Articles Editor, Senior Articles Editor, and Managing Editor from 2006–2012. Robert has also won numerous teaching awards. Robert is currently the President-Elect of the Academy of Legal Studies in Business, the international academic organization for law in schools of business.

Vivek Soundararajan

From Suspicion to Sustainability in Global Supply Chains

Vivek Soundararajan is an Associate Professor of International Management at the University of Bath, United Kingdom. Vivek's research explores the ways by which businesses, through their global supply chains, can contribute to social, environmental, and economic sustainability, and create value for stakeholders. Under this broad theme, he conducts research on labour exploitation, labour governance, environmental governance, multi-stakeholder initiatives, oppression in organizations, and fringe stakeholder value creation. His research has been published in journals such as Business Ethics Quarterly, Journal of Operations Management, Journal of World Business, Human Relations, Journal of Business Ethics, and Business & Society, among others. Vivek has acquired funding from both industries and research councils and has received numerous prestigious awards. Currently, he is an editorial board member of the Journal of Business Ethics and Business & Society, and he reviews for numerous high-impact journals across disciplines on an ad-hoc basis. Vivek received his PhD from the University of London.

Jenna Johnson

The Press, National Security, and Civil Discourse: How a Federal Shield Law Could Reaffirm Media Credibility in an Era of "Fake News"

Jenna Johnson will graduate from Texas A&M University School of Law in May 2020.
